

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A virtualized-information management apparatus for managing corresponding information between real storage areas of a plurality of storages connected to a network and a virtual storage area built by

5 virtually integrating the real storage areas includes a transmission/reception unit that transmits/receives, between the virtualized-information management apparatus and another virtualized-information management apparatus connected to another network, information on updating the corresponding information, and an

10 updating unit that updates the corresponding information based on the information received.